

Rainbow Castle

If there's a special song in this "pocketful" - it's simply got to be this one. Rainbow Castle is a song from the mold of "The Muse is Sleeping" and "Girl with the Sun in her Hair".... it's a fantasy song, rich in imagery and detail. Yet it's one of those songs of mine that hints at more than one dimension too - as represented by the photo on the back side of the album CD; this "Rainbow Castle" also represents, in my mind, that most fabulous place: the unique Field Station Berlin (FSB) which no longer is there. (where has it gone, I wish I knew....)

There is a quote on the back cover along with this photo, that says "to the Rainbow Castle and to the friends who made the journey with me". This is my sentiment, and there's very little I can add to it. It was simply an extraordinary, unique place and time, a magical journey with a group of fellow adventurers whom I shall never forget.

A toast then: "To the Rainbow Castle!"
