

Along The Road

words & music by John Dandrea

Walking along the road never stay around too long I'm just looking for a place where I belong still singin' the same old song and all the friends that I've known then had to leave behind I go back looking for the "old days" that I see in my mind but that's not what I find.

I try to find my way back, but I'm so out of place everything has changed, nothing is the same

So I'm walking along the road, and I've been here before and every highway that I cross only leads to more wonder what I'm walking for.

No one even knows me, I'm a stranger to their eyes
I pass them on the street, they're busy with their lives

So I'm walking along the road
kick my dusty shoes
I take up my guitar and start to sing the blues so what have I got to lose?
Along the Road.
