

Ten Years From Now

words & music by Steve Kuryla

arrangement by John Dandrea

*will you turn to me, the way you turned to me right now -
ten years from now?
and will you say the things you say to me, right now?*

it's early in the morning and I can't hardly sleep I'm on my way to mystery world, these questions seem to keep running through my thoughtful mind, I just gotta know what's in your mind and in your heart because I love you so. . . .

*so will you turn to me, the way you turned to me right now -
ten years from now?

answers to these questions, I've searched for all my days and in my heart I know I love the mystery of your ways no matter where we are, no matter what we do remember there is nothing that can keep my love from you. . . .

ten years from now?
