FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

7/7/06 Topanga Canyon, CA

FOOS/JANES ADDICTION DRUMMERS JAM WITH POLICE TRIBUTE FALLOUT.

Taylor Hawkins from the Foo Fighters joined FALLOUT: The Police Experience for an unforgettable night of live Police music.

Fans of both The Foo Fighters and The Police, including fellow Foo Dave Grohl, were on hand to see Taylor Hawkins, a known Stewart Copeland disciple, perform with FALLOUT: The Police Experience. With Hawkins behind the drums, FALLOUT rocked an hours worth of early Police material; including The Police classic When The World's Running Down with Janes Addiction drummer Stephen Perkins taking over for Hawkins. More Hawkins/FALLOUT shows are in the works for this fall. See FALLOUT: The Police Experience performing September 9th at the House of Blues-Sunset and September 22nd at The Sachi Bar in Long Beach, CA. Visit www.policeexperience.com for details.

FALLOUT: The Police Experience hurls you back 20 years ago to re-live the raw, electrifying, event that was a Police concert.

FALLOUT: The Police Experience is full evening that chronicles the supercharged live shows that transformed The Police from raw punk-reggae upstarts into chart dominating superstars. With extraordinary attention to detail, FALLOUT: The Police Experience, has amazed audiences wherever they have played. From young fans of 80s music who may not have even heard of The Police, to the most hardcore of fans and even members of The Police family themselves.

"...you won't believe it's not The Police...completely captures, not just the music of The Police, but their very essence...absolutely amazing"

Ian Copeland

"...the best copy band I have seen to date...close your eyes and it's my boys..."

Miles Copeland

"...every nuance, all the drum parts, and the singer has Sting down to a tee..."

Stewart Copeland

In July 2003, Ian Copeland arranged the band to play Stewart Copeland's birthday party. With Ian, Stewart, and Miles in the audience, FALLOUT, ripped through all the classic Police tunes. Later in the evening, Stewart asked if he could sit in. FALLOUT and Stewart tore the house down with "Driven To Tears" and "Roxanne." For the band it was an honor and a solid affirmation of their efforts to play with one of the world's most talented rock drummers ever and the founding member of The Police!

Whether it's a club, festival, private party or corporate function, FALLOUT: The Police Experience is an exciting, high-energy show that will amaze audiences and provide an adrenaline filled burst of nostalgia to anyone who spent their formative years in the 80s.

FALLOUT: The Police Experience was formed by David Rasner, (Sting), in the fall of 2002, in Hollywood, California. Named after the first single The Police, (unsigned, unknown, and without a record), released. When Mike Nieland, (Stewart), and then Pat Cherry, (Andy), were recruited, the band began to transform itself into a "fighting unit", and within a year was playing every major club in Los Angeles. "Uncle" Ian Copeland met FALLOUT in 2003, and immediately befriended the band. He invited FALLOUT to play at The Backstage Café and arranged the meeting with Stewart.

FALLOUT: The Police Experience was added to Coda Agency/The Copeland Group's live roster in March of 2005. In the spring of 2006, Jimbo Head replaced Pat Cherry as FALLOUT's guitarist.
