The Band

"...Next thing I know I'm pulled up on stage with about 5 other girls and I'm dancin' with the band...
Gotta find out when Party Freak is coming back!"

Metromix, June 2008

Scott Lewis

Lead Vocals, Guitars, Monkey Handler

Scott's musical talents are incomparable, since no one else we know changes the structure of songs as the band is playing them like he does. Genius? Perhaps. At least Scott likes to think so. When not with Party Freak, Scott can be seen playing with other bands, although they refuse to admit it.

Rodney Yee

Bass Guitars, Vocals, Disguises

Not much is known about Rodney's formative years, other than that it involved wigs and strange hats. His experience playing accordian in a Sade tribute band is absolutely no help to his current role playing bass guitar in the band, although his familiarity with wigs and strange hats comes in handy during the Party Freak shows.

Richard Dirkes-Jacks

Keyboards, Guitars, Harmonica

Richard is skilled at playing many styles of music. Unfortunately, playing the radio doesn't help the band. Richard has been described as a "jack of all trades" because of all the instruments he plays, but the band prefers to consider him a 6 of clubs.

Jim Norris

Lead Guitars, Vocals, Cell Phone

Jim's knowledge of music is rarely questioned. He can't play most of it, but he is always willing to try. Jim's ability to multi-task is legendary, although his attempts to play guitar while on his cell phone have come up just short of "not quite."

Tony Stephan

Percussion

Although he likes to make lots of noise and bang on things, Tony really doesn't play the drums that much anymore. He only has a few drums left in his setup. In between hitting them, Tony complains about the drum sound and lack of a bonus plan in the band.
