

Natural Thang

by Scott Seabock

Everybody wants the secret to find a love that lasts
Some new prescription from the doctor trying to recover what was once in the past
Or they may listen to a modern day cupid's advice
To find someone compatible and oh so nice
But there's no guaranty that will lock them together like two links in a chain
The fact is true passion can't be scientifically explained
It's just a natural thang

Sometimes I bring my lady roses chocolate candy or some sweet perfume
Still I know that ain't the reason we carry on like a new bride and groom
It's more a certain way she looks me in the eye
That hits me like a lightning bolt from the sky
And keeps us chasing each other through the jungle
Like we were Tarzan and Jane
To tell the truth I don't understand it much myself
It's just a natural thang

Just like an earthquake that I don't see coming
I feel my body shake every time that woman
She holds me close and says it's time to act natural again
I said baby I'm your man

So there's a lesson we can learn from the birds and the bees
Something that lovers have always known since Adam and Eve
You've got to feel it right from the start
Won't be a fire if there ain't no spark
Because it's not about the kind of car you drive
Or how you use your brain
So so so don't think about it it should be automatic
You can't control it it's much too erratic
Still it's something everybody else wishes they had it
I mean that natural thang
